

Increase collaboration and productivity.

Telepresence solutions from Bell

Enterprises are constantly seeking better ways to effectively communicate, collaborate, and respond rapidly to change across global boundaries. As costs rise and an economic downturn lingers, businesses are also seeking innovative ways to reduce costs, improve employee productivity, and increase efficiencies. New technology platforms, such as Cisco TelePresence, are playing a key role by helping people collaborate like never before. With telepresence, you can instantly connect with workers, customers and partners without leaving your office.

Solution

Telepresence solutions from Bell use ultra high-definition video, advanced audio and finely tuned ambient elements to deliver live, life-size face-to-face experiences over the IP network. Easy to operate, they integrate seamlessly with common enterprise groupware, including Microsoft Exchange and Lotus Notes.

What's more, Bell has developed a comprehensive range of services to help you prepare, plan, design and maintain your networks for successful implementation, ensuring that you realize the full potential of your investments. In fact, Bell is the first Canadian provider to pass Cisco's stringent connection certification for TelePresence networks. As a Cisco Advanced Technology Provider with in-depth experience in Cisco Unified Communications and virtual presence technology, we can provide the expertise and technology resources to support all your telepresence needs.

Photo courtesy of Cisco Systems, Inc.

Benefits

- Reduce travel costs significantly
- Communicate as naturally and effectively as if face-to-face
- Make decisions faster by having the right resources available at the right time
- Save time spent traveling to and from meetings, for increased productivity and better work/life balance

Why Bell?

Bell is a Canadian leader in converging information, communication and technologies (ICT) strategies to help enterprises improve business performance, speed time-to-market, and realize peace of mind. The foundation of our world-class ICT infrastructure is a high-powered reliable network backed by a multi-disciplinary team of experts. Our highly-skilled professionals offer diverse expertise in business process assessment, as well as solution design and deployment across a wide range of industries. Bell solutions and services can be customized to meet industry-specific needs and the business demands of today and the future.

For more information contact your Bell representative or visit bell.ca/enterprise

